Legare farms is a family farm that has been continually operating since 1725. Linda, Helen, and Thomas Legare are the ninth generation of Legares to farm on Johns Island.

The mission of Legare Farms Education Foundation is to help raise awareness and educate Lowcountry communities and school children on the agricultural heritage of this region and the need to maintain this legacy for future generations.

Legare Farms produces sod, hormone free beef, local produce, jams & jellies. They also run a full scale grower's nursery and a 501(c)3 education foundation that provides school field trips, community educational opportunities & special events.
